HABITAT IN THE HOUSE

Annual Report 2013-2014

Habitat Establishes "Legacy Builders"

Last August, Habitat lost a wonderful volunteer with the passing of Mildred Naugle, an active member of "the toy group" – a team of devoted men and women who make, and paint, old-fashioned wooden toys for Habitat to sell as a way to raise funds. Mildred was a familiar face around our office every Tuesday, never neglecting to look up from her painting to give a cheery greeting to everyone who happened by.

Mildred Naugle

After Mildred's passing, we learned that her legacy will be with us for many years to come. Through the Winston-Salem Foundation, she had established a way to continue to support us through a designated fund from which Habitat will receive income each year. Such planned gifts, arranged by supporters during their lifetime to be disbursed after they have passed away, are important sources of income that help Habitat fulfill its mission.

Chris Chapman

"We are blessed each year by planned gifts," said Sylvia Oberle, executive director of Habitat Forsyth. "They have benefited, and continue to benefit, programs like construction education, the building fund and general operating expenses. We were very touched by Mildred's gift, and it helped motivate us to establish a formal planned giving program for others who might like to leave a legacy gift to Habitat, but either haven't thought about it or would like advice on how to do it."

Chris Chapman and Ed Pleasants, two long-time supporters and former board members, have each graciously included Habitat in their own planned giving strategies. They are now advising Habitat on establishing the Legacy Builders Society for supporters who choose to include Habitat in their estate plans.

Ed Pleasants

"A lot of people may feel uncomfortable thinking about this subject, or they may worry about giving away money that they themselves may one day need, because none of us knows how long we will live," Chapman said. He added, light-heartedly: "Designating money to Habitat or other organizations — funds they will receive only after your death — just seemed logical to me, because of course, at that point, I will no longer be needing it!"

Pleasants said he has provided for Habitat as part of a charitable remainder unitrust at the Winston-Salem Foundation. "I have already moved beyond the phase of paying college tuition and other expenses, and a deferred gift allows me to provide for my family but also leave something for Habitat," he said. "It's easy to want to support Habitat, because the Habitat model is one of the greatest examples of a win-win situation. A family becomes homeowners, and the mortgage payments they make go toward helping more families become homeowners. Habitat truly makes a difference in people's lives."

Planned giving does not have to be complicated, nor is it something that only the wealthy do. It encompasses options as diverse as including a bequest to Habitat in a will, designating Habitat as a beneficiary of a life insurance policy, designating funds from an IRA or other retirement plan, or establishing a charitable remainder trust.

If you are interested in exploring ways to leave a legacy to Habitat, or you have already done so and wish to be part of the Legacy Builders Society, please contact Brad Zabel at 336-765-8854, ext. 138 or brad.zabel@habitatforsyth.org. You can work with your own attorneys and accountants to make arrangements, or the Winston-Salem Foundation can provide a variety of planned giving options to assist you with your charitable planning for Habitat.

Executive Director's Message

Past Year Brought End of Capital Campaign, New ReStore and More

By Sylvia Oberle

We made history last year at Habitat Forsyth, and our annual report thanks those of you who helped make that happen.

Our new ReStore opened on Jan. 2, and was a history-making step in the growth of Habitat's donation and retail operations, which helps fund our building program. And what a difference it has made.

Total revenue January through June was up 41% vs. the same period a year ago, and average daily sales of $3,385 eclipsed year-ago average daily sales of $2,310 by 46%. The store has also been more aggressive in seeking revenue from recycling, now a measurable amount of monthly income. In addition, increased visibility has brought higher customer traffic and higher quality donations, with more high-end furniture, estate items and goods procured from corporate and business prospects.

The simple truth is, "IT'S WORKING," which means we were able to serve a record number of families last year. With your ongoing support, that number will continue to grow each year.

We also made history with unique partners in the building and renovating of houses in the Boston-Thurmond neighborhood. One of those, the Hospice Healing Build, was a meaningful collaboration between Habitat and Hospice Palliative & CareCenter, in which community members working through their grief came together to build a house. This shared experience formed lasting bonds and was captured in the documentary "Labor of Love – the Healing Build," which premiered last month at the UNC School of the Arts. This was a first collaboration between Habitat and Hospice, and we hope the first of many here and in other communities across the country.

Finally, we hosted a historic celebration for Habitat

International's Collegiate Challenge program – the 25th Anniversary Build. If you remember the cold and ice of early March, then say a special word of thanks to the 100 college students who wouldn't stop working until they had made substantial progress on four houses in the Glenn Oaks neighborhood, where families are now living and thriving. You and your support helped feed them, entertain them, supervise their building and house them at The Children's Home, and showed them an all-around good time. They told us the week's work and experiences were unforgettable – thanks to you.

As our new fiscal year begins, we are ready to take on even more challenges. In the months ahead, we will be securing a new location for our education, construction and administrative operations — and becoming a "homeowner" ourselves for the first time. Our homeowner education and training programs are being revised and enhanced, with more focus on training the whole family to become successful homeowners and neighbors and how to better maintain their homes for the long term.

We are creating new house designs to adapt more to smaller families and lot sizes and to better address the needs of elderly individuals. We are developing new giving levels, including a planned giving push highlighted elsewhere in this report, which will increase our sustainable support in the community. We are working hard to engage more young people in the mission of Habitat. And we are fielding, once again, our annual build team to Nicaragua, where this year we will work on house additions that will allow the poorest families there to generate more income from entrepreneurial efforts out of their homes.

That's a lot to strive for, and we can only do it with your help, for which we are grateful. Ultimately, your investment in Habitat for Humanity pays off all across our community and elsewhere in the world – day after day, year after year.

Habitat Young Professionals Begin Year With New Leadership

Mimi Driscoll and Jennifer deGuzman are the new Co-Chairs of the Habitat Young Professionals (HYP). They are stepping in at an exciting time and are following the capable leadership of last year's Co-Chairs Tyler Burr and Spencer Bennett.

HYP members held a Wall Build at the end of August to kick off their 2014-15 building project. The group is also beginning to plan the HYP 4th Annual Gala – a party that you don't want to miss. If you are interested in joining the young professionals group please contact Jennifer or Mimi directly:
